

Justice and Peace Office Strategic Plan

Feb 2019 – Feb 2022

Mission Statement

The Justice and Peace Office (JPO) exists to promote justice, peace, ecology and development as guided by sacred scripture through Catholic Social Teaching (CST). We promote these values through work on specific social justice issues affecting the Archdiocese and Sydney. We do this work in pursuit of a fairer, more just and sustainable city, Church and community. We achieve these goals by partnering and collaborating with parishes, Catholic agencies, neighbouring dioceses and other community organisations and groups to empower Catholics in the Archdiocese to advocate for justice in their own and others' lives in pursuit of the common good.

This Strategic Plan is divided into two parts. The first outlines our four 'Core Areas' and our strategic goals in each. The second part outlines the process to be used for discerning our priorities. The plan should be reviewed in its entirety in Feb 2022.

We believe:

- that working for peace and justice is evangelisation in action as it is a way to live out Jesus' command to love one another as He has loved us;
- in the God-given dignity of the human person and rejecting or changing any policy or system that reduces or denies this dignity;
- that working for peace and justice means working for all of God's creation, both people and earth, in an integrated harmonious way so as to reflect the divine relationship between all of creation and our God.
- in the common good and that every person has rights and duties in promoting and enjoying the welfare of the community at local, national and global levels;
- in solidarity by standing with others, especially the marginalised and excluded in our communities. We believe this is an active commitment of responsibility and love for each other;
- that people can and should speak and act for themselves in ways that accord with their own chosen desires, cultures, norms and needs. We believe we should never do something for someone that they can do for themselves;
- that our poor and vulnerable brothers and sisters should be at the forefront of the decisions we make about how our communities and societies are structured at every level;

PART I

PART II

Identifying Priorities

Our Core Areas are brought to life and strengthened through specific actions, campaigns and projects. The portfolio of issues that make up ‘social justice’ is large and varied. It can include topics such as homelessness, housing affordability, working conditions and unemployment, training others to work in social justice, discrimination in its many forms, promoting Catholic Social Teaching and a spirituality for justice, refugee and asylum seeker issues, family violence, peace and conflict issues, treatment of women, disability, economic justice, treatment of the young and old, ecological concerns, our justice system, treatment and social participation of indigenous Australians, poverty and the wealth gap. The JPO needs a flexible discernment process to help us devise a proactive plan of work, as well as process that allows us to flexibly respond to current affairs and policy developments.

Therefore, the JPO will regularly, preferably quarterly but at least annually, use the following criteria to select and prioritise the issues, areas, projects and campaigns on which the JPO will undertake and in what capacity. The JPO will also use this process throughout the year to evaluate and adjust progress towards priorities and discern how and if to respond to issues as they arise. This should especially be the case where substantial time and resources will be needed to respond to any issue or project and that issue or project is not already a priority area.

Discerning JPO Priorities

Priorities– Quarterly/Monthly Reviews

Using the process above discern priorities area for each quarter or month and use as the basis for monthly/quarterly/annual reviews and reflections.

Top Priority

Medium Priority

Low Priority
